

Levante
design Marco Spatti

LUCE PLAN

Fruit of the designer's creative intuition, combined with Luceplan's carefully-researched materials, technology and planning expertise, this is a strong-impact exciting pendant light: a new key feature in domestic living areas as well as for contract use. The light is large yet the overall image is ethereal, like an object floating through space. Levante (a name which conjures up lightness and wind but also makes a clear reference to oriental aesthetics) comes from an intersection of three large fans, and is made of an unusual material for the design sector - it comes instead from the food industry, looking like rice paper and able to evenly diffuse its light around the whole area. The fans are very fine and magnetically attached to the central section which holds the light source, hidden away like a real and beating heart. The lamp comes in two sizes: 60 cm and 1 m in diameter. The material is washable, resistant and recyclable. Levante represents a new Luceplan icon, created with sustainable principles without ever betraying the mission of high-quality projects focused on form and emotive impact.

Luceplan | Icons of light

luceplanusa.com

